

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 337

When all the contestants went offstage, they all felt really good about themselves.

“The idol looked at me earlier. Oh my, I saw him smile at me, so it means that I did really well!”

“I saw him draw a circle when he was writing down my score. The idol must have given me a full 10 points!”

When Natasha heard about this, she scoffed, What a bunch of idiots! How could Michael grade them a full 10 points when they don't even know what kind of quality they are?

She was confident about her own performance as she had most likely even outdone Cooper when he was alive. This year's Miss Misty would still be mine and the idol would naturally only belong to me as well! With my flawless face, unsurpassed achievements and an respected background, there is no man in this world that I can't have!

While Harry stood next to her, he looked over to Michael, who was sitting at the panel of judges and was tediously drawing circles all over the scoresheets. Then, he glanced at her as she felt confident about herself. He sighed, Idiot.

After that, they only needed to wait for the last contestant to be onstage before beginning the group runway sessions.

The host had already started announcing, “And for our last Miss Misty contestant, Sophia from our School of Economics and Business Administration. Sophia is our top student in the school and she was accepted by our School of Finance with flying colors. Not only has she been awarded with many academic awards, but she possesses a professional English language certificate and also a Piano Grade 10 Certificate...”

After hearing the praises from the host, Xyla and Richard smiled at each other, knowing that there was no way Sophia would be able to go onstage and complete the runway show without any outfits.

Natasha felt a perk of interest towards Sophia after listening to the host’s introduction. Even though she knew that Sophia was far from a threat, she was definitely one of the more outstanding contestants in this year’s Miss Misty Pageant.

Then, the stage lights flickered and shone towards the left entrance of the stage—as a charming, young girl stood there readily for her turn.

As the spotlight shone on the girl, everyone clearly saw the image of her. There were no gasps of astonishment or whispers—instead, it was dead silence across the audience as looks were shared with each other to the point where no one knew whether to cheer or boo at her in the end.

Other contestants wore their best glamorous and beautiful outfits, eager to present their beauty through their choice of clothes, but the last contestant only wore a—school uniform!

Hence, the first Miss Misty Pageant contestant to walk the runway in a school uniform was born!

Furthermore, other contestants for the Miss Misty Pageant had handsome, charming young men as their runway companion, but the particular one chose a young boy as her runway partner!

Even the judges were rendered dumbfounded and speechless.

A giggle escaped from Xyla as she tried hard not to laugh out loud. Sophia is really wearing the school uniform on the runway!

As the music began to play, Sophia followed the rhythmic beats and slowly walked up the stage.

Her valedictorian look was even more convincing with the Bayside University's summer uniform—her left hand held a book while a sling bag was casually hanging on her shoulders. The uniform showed off her slim physique, making her look innocent yet suggestive at the same time whereas the black and wine red colors stripes on her skirt matched with the black knee-high pantyhose, which revealed enough flesh on her thighs and showcased her long, lean legs. Lastly, she finished the look with a pair of black leather school shoes that made her look mysterious and elegant.

The background story behind Bayside University's school uniform was that the inspiration came from a wine red rock from the Misty Lake, so the university had hired a well-known designer to design it before giving it to L/K to manufacture it. From its quality to a sense of fashion or even reputation, the uniform was no less than a branded version and perfectly captured the Bayside University's image.

Then again, no one had ever seen a contestant in the pageant wearing the school uniform for the runway, let alone walking on it with such a young 'male partner'.

Sophia and Nathan slowly walked under everyone's curious stares—it was as though Bayside University's hundred years of history was shown on her as she walked elegantly with the school uniform and her skirt swaying back and forth over her pearl white thighs; it was like she had the breeze moving around her.

Her make-up was light and clean as she wore a black frame glasses with a stoic expression on her face. Yet, there seemed to be a glimmer of a confident and proud spark hiding deep inside her eyes, concurrently making her seem arrogant yet friendly and everything else seem just right.

Suddenly, she reminded them of their stern teacher in high school who never returned to their home country!

Nathan was walking next to Sophia in his custom-made black school uniform with a look of indifference, making him seem older than he was. The two of them walked to the front of the T-stage and presented themselves to front of the crowd.

It was then that the crowd was awakened before claps and cheers rained like thunder throughout the hall. Some of the seniors were even frantically pressing the CALL button and flashes of glow sticks were everywhere.

Michael was the first to clap in the judges panel. Aha, I knew that my wife is still the cutest! Full marks all the way! Those who don't give her full marks would be a bunch of idiots!

After that, the judges had started to write their score and he finally penned his long-awaited 10 marks and even did the same next to Harry's name. He glanced over to check on the other judges—the vice-chancellor provided a 10, others gave a 9 and the lowest was a 8.8.

Very well. Since you didn't give Sophia a full mark, I'll remember your faces.

After Sophia's jaw-dropping performance, she stood in front of the T-stage for a few seconds before turning to leave the stage. She extended her hand to hold hands with Nathan as they left together.

Earlier, he bore the look of a cold, domineering director, but suddenly after holding hands with his mother, he looked like an adorable young boy.

"Ahh! He's so cute!"

"Little Nate is just too adorable!"

"If only I had a son like that too!"

All the girls started to lose their composure over that unique duo.

Even with Nathan's distant and arrogant looks, he was still an adorable boy, which worked in Sophia's favor, especially when they left the stage together holding hands because it illustrated a side of her maternal radiance.

The judge who wrote 8.8 marks quietly replaced his original score with a mark of 9.5.

Her astonishing performance left the other contestants speechless as they would never have expected that their fancy, glamorous gown were not nearly as good as her school uniform. Even the efforts of choosing and selecting the best male companion to walk the runway seemed like nothing when compared to Sophia trodding the runway with her own son!

As Xyla stared at Sophia and her son walking away while holding hands, a malevolent look flashed through her face as a cruel plan rose in her mind, glancing at Natasha.
