

My Dreamy Old Husband

Chapter 505

Even Alex took action? “What happened then?” Sophia was very curious as to how the vice chancellor would deal with the situation in the end.

“The vice chancellor asked me to substitute my photo with Natasha’s in the alumni corridor, so the Mitchell Family was not able to refute him.”

Hearing this, Sophia was speechless. In fact, with Linus’ current status, it was not a big deal for his photo to be hung on the alumni corridor. He had two PhDs and not only was he the second in charge of the Michel Family, he also had many patents in the field of electronics and had made many contributions in said field. To top it off, he was also very influential as well. He was almost as successful as Cooper when Cooper was at his age.

With Linus as an excuse, the Mitchell Family really did not dare to make trouble anymore. Sophia and Linus were born in the same year, the same month and the same day. However, when she compared herself to Linus... she suddenly felt dejected.

The two chatted while walking, and Linus talked about the big project he and Stanley were cooperating on. They wanted to cooperate on a big online game and of course, Sophia was involved in this project. Truth was, Sophia loved talking to Linus. Although they were of the same age, Linus’ vision and knowledge were incomparable to those of the same age.

Sophia felt that she had learned a lot in every conversation with him. Especially when it came to professional questions about computers, she could also get the fastest and most accurate answer from Linus. She suddenly felt that it was great to have an older brother.

She also had several older brothers previously, two older brothers from her uncle's family, but they bullied her since childhood. Thus, she suddenly hoped that she could have a brother who was gentle, patient and perfect like Linus. She thought that Linus' sister was probably the happiest woman on earth...

It was a completely different feeling from being with Michael. Sophia didn't know how to describe the feeling either. In short, she liked talking to Linus very much. She didn't know why, but it felt as if she had found her doppelgänger. Linus seemed to be able to see through what she was thinking at a glance and they had a tacit understanding, much like twins...

They had arrived early, so there was still some time before class started. Initially, Sophia was planning to go to a lake or something to recite some foreign verses. Since Linus came along, she could talk to him and could also ask some professional questions.

Linus was also very serious as he answered her answers. He even wrote down the calculation formula with a pen for Sophia. Seeing that class was about to start, Gemma, who had been following Sophia, suddenly hurried over. "Faye and Joe came here with a group of people and they seem to be looking for you."

What did Faye and Joe want with her? Sophia frowned as she closed her notebook, stopping her conversation with Linus.

Linus, who was sitting opposite her, felt a moment of disgust and anxiety that he hadn't felt for a long time. He didn't know what was wrong with him, but he seemed to be able to easily feel Sophia's feelings...

"What's happening?"

Sophia put the notebook into her bag and said, "It's nothing. There's a group of people who came to look for me who I don't really want to see."

However, as she stood up and was about to go to them, a middle-aged man in an oversized suit rushed over. He was thin and wore glasses, but he immediately caught hold of Sophia with great strength. “Sophia, it really is you! I’m your uncle!”

Then, Sophia finally clearly saw the faces of all the people who came here. Wasn’t he her uncle, Liam Johnson? Seeing her uncle’s face that resembled a poor intellectual, Sophia recalled the stench of rotten food mixed with the sourness of kimchi, because when she was young, their family always gave her food that they couldn’t bear to throw away.

She held the bowl and looked at the rice which had a strange smell and the green vegetables that had clumped together after being reheated several times. She couldn’t make herself eat it no matter what. Then, she saw her cousin holding the same bowl of food to feed the dogs.

Seeing her gaze, her eldest cousin picked out some dog food from the dog bowl to tease her and made her eat it while her second cousin would laugh at her on the side.

At this time, she recalled that when her grandma was still alive, she got to eat cabbage porridge, which was actually quite nice. Grandma would also stir a little minced meat into the dish and put a little bit of crispy kimchi before giving it to her with a smile.

After Grandma passed away, she secretly opened the lid of the kimchi jar at her uncle’s house as she wanted to eat kimchi. However, a bamboo stick appeared out of thin air and hit her arm, causing pain to radiate up her arm. Panicking due to the pain, she cried out all of a sudden but she still did not dare to refute them.

Her aunt chased her with the bamboo stick in her hands. Sophia ran away carrying the bowl and fled to the village, while her aunt went back cursing furiously. Then, Sophia found a place and took out the bowl she had desperately protected.

There were two more kimchis in the bowl, but it had been mixed with the rotten food. She swallowed it bit by bit, swallowing some of her tears in the process. She didn't dare go home and she only went home secretly at night.

However, the door of her uncle's house was closed, so she curled up at the door and slept there all night in the cold. To distract herself, she silently recited Cethos texts and verses.

Snapping back to reality, she looked up and saw everyone gathered around her—her uncle, aunt and two cousins. One by one, their eyes were shining with greed and surprise as if they were looking at money that just fell down from the sky.

She hadn't seen these faces for six years. Six years ago, the village was demolished and relocated, but her uncle's house was not among those that were selected to be relocated. After that, Sophia was admitted to the best high school in the south of the city. When she came back to ask for money, they vented their frustration on her and chased her while beating her.

Covered in blood after being hit by them with sticks, she fled to the home of the principal of Riverdale Middle School for help.

Then, the principal led her back to her uncle's house and took her household registry, identity card and admission notice. After that day, she had never seen those faces ever again.

Meanwhile, Liam was really overjoyed this time. He pressed Sophia's shoulder and looked at her now, tsking in amazement. What a surprise! What a surprise!

Both of his sons had reached the age of marriage. The house was not demolished in the end and the bride's family was urging them to pay the betrothal gift; otherwise, they would not proceed with the marriage. However, their family couldn't afford it so they were at a loss as to what to do. Suddenly, the Edwards Family sent someone to inform them that his niece Sophia had become wealthy in the city.

Not only did she go to Bayside University, she also had returned to the Edwards Family. She even married a rich man and lived in a villa within the ring road highway of Bayside City.

If the Edwards Family hadn't sent someone to tell them in person, Liam would definitely not believe it. And now, the Johnson Family surrounded Sophia happily.

Faye and Joe were watching by the side and noticed that Sophia seemed as if she was full of anger and disgust, but didn't dare to show it. Ha! The Johnson Family, who has raised her for more than ten years, indeed knows how to handle her! Let's see if she can escape this time!

There was a huge commotion and it attracted the attention of many students. Suddenly, Sophia looked at the crowd and saw Natasha looking at her with a very contemptuous look. These are Sophia's relatives? Sure enough, she's just a peasant! Look at her brood of poor relatives! Let's see how she'll settle her troublemaking poor relatives!

If Sophia disowned them on the spot, Natasha would report her and her National Scholarship would be withdrawn immediately. If she bit the bullet and acknowledged them as her family, it would mean that the family had control over her.
