

Sir, You Don't Know Your Wife Chapter 1035

Even though Desire and Lara were also worried about Janet, they couldn't help but comfort Mason after seeing his huge reaction. "Janet's heart is beating normally. She is probably too tired, so she'll be fine after sleeping it off."

Then, without uttering a word, Mason got up and carried the woman up from the ground.

"You just woke up so your body can't handle it. I'll do it." Lee was afraid that Mason would accidentally let go of Janet due to his lack of strength, so he actively reached out to carry her.

However, Mason furrowed his brows and his pale lips moved slightly. "No."

The man couldn't take no for an answer, not to mention Janet wasn't that heavy anyway.

Now, he only wanted to be with her forever, even if it was only for a second.

Upon hearing the man's cold voice, Lee could sense that the former's tone wasn't right, so he quickly withdrew his hands.

"Babe, let's go back home. We'll never set foot in Ebony Town ever again," Mason mumbled while holding the woman in his arms.

Actually, what he wanted to say was that he would never let the same thing happen to her ever again.

On the plane, everyone remained silent and they didn't even dare to catch their breaths.

In the end, Lara voiced out the confusion in her heart. "Mr. Lowry, why were you in Ebony Town?"

She was curious as to when he arrived at Ebony Town.

Was he already in the town when we tried to contact him?

Facing her questions, the man remained quiet, as if everything in the outside world had nothing to do with him.

At the moment, he stared at the tiny face of the woman in his arms, not uttering a word.

He was so quiet that it was getting a little terrifying.

Then, Henry flicked his nose and said proudly, "I knew all along that Young Master Mason isn't a sc*mbag. Look at him—isn't he the first one to find Janet when she is in grave danger?"

Henry felt quite proud when he was saying those words.

However, Lara rolled her eyes at him without saying a word.

After that, Desire clenched her fists and gritted her teeth as she growled, "Prime Minister Welch has crossed the line this time. Look what he has done to Janet."

Upon hearing her words, Henry raised his brows and asked, "Prime Minister Welch? Why does Janet have something to do with him?"

"It's a long story," Lee muttered. "Back when the President gave a huge gift at Mason's 26th birthday party, Janet promised to help him kill Prime Minister Welch to return the favor because she is an assassin. Prime Minister Welch is also in Ebony Town today, so if my guess is correct, she must have fought him before passing out."

However, Henry didn't hear the rest of his words as he only focused on the word 'assassin'.

He blinked, his face full of disbelief. "What is her assassin's codename?"

At this point, Lee felt that there was no need to keep it a secret any longer, so he murmured calmly, "Shadow 1."

Upon hearing that, Henry almost fell off his chair.

Suddenly, his entire body stiffened and it was as if his blood froze in his veins, preventing him from reacting to the situation.

The merciless and cold-blooded assassin, Shadow 1, that everyone has been talking about is actually Janet. She is the assassin Shadow 1? At that moment, Henry felt that the world was operating in a mysterious way. A university freshman is actually an assassin in disguise? This is f*cking bonkers!

However, since she is the leader of the MX, it isn't a surprise that she is also an assassin too.

Thankfully, this isn't the first time I know her capabilities, otherwise, I would actually pass out in shock. However, Janet is such a strong woman, so how was that prime minister able to harm her like this?

At the moment, Henry felt upset for her as he roared, "Who is this Prime Minister Welch? I'll ask someone else to finish him off!"

Lee pressed his hands against each other as he pursed thin lips. "He is the Prime Minister of the Hawke Kingdom," he murmured lightly.

The Prime Minister of the Hawke Kingdom?

Upon hearing his words, Henry remained speechless for a while.

Then, he muttered, "So what? I'll still kill him for hurting my sister-in-law. If I can't kill him, I'll ask Young Master Mason to find someone to kill him instead. How can a prime minister like him compare to the most powerful man in Asia?"

Henry boasted with his head held high.

Then, Lara clenched her fists and pursed her lips. "F*ck that Prime Minister Welch! I hope that he dies without any descendants!"

Desire nodded and chimed in, "You're right. Even though it's Janet's fault, he is still an evil man for hurting her so badly and escaping afterward. After she is awake, I'll immediately bring an army to destroy his Hawke Kingdom."

Upon hearing that, Henry blinked. "Do you know where the Hawke Kingdom is?"

"I'll find it on the map!" she answered him angrily.

Then, Lara sneered gleefully and she gloated, "Ha! Maybe Prime Minister Welch died in a fire." Otherwise, we would have seen him by now.

Desire felt that it made sense. "F*ck! That would be great!"

However, Henry felt that there were still many loopholes in this matter and it was better to receive confirmation from a witness, so he turned to Mason and asked, "Young Master Mason, why aren't you saying anything? Is Prime Minister Welch really dead?" Good riddance! I don't even need to kill him myself!

Mason's lips twitched for a moment as he didn't know how to explain to them. After a few seconds of silence, he suddenly muttered, "Prime Minister Welch isn't dead."

Henry, who wasn't hopeful at first, was slightly surprised when he heard his answer. Instantly, everyone held their breaths and their eyes were filled with rage.

"F*ck. How is this b*stard this lucky? Even Janet couldn't kill him." Lara gritted her teeth.

"Damn him! So, did he really do this to Janet?" Desire rubbed her palms together.

The man did not deny it and he nodded. "Yes."

Upon hearing his words, Lee grunted coldly. "I'll go back and gather everyone in the organization straight away. Looks like we'll just have to blow up his kingdom."

Henry licked his lips, looking very menacing as well. "I'll go with you."

"I am Prime Minister Welch."

Suddenly, Mason revealed a mind-blowing fact. Everyone's eyes narrowed in an instant. Due to the shock, Henry's phone fell from his hand right away and hit his foot. At the moment, everyone, including Lara, Desire, Lee and Henry, were all rendered speechless.

Is he joking? Mason is Prime Minister Welch of the Hawke Kingdom? He really is the prime minister of the Hawke Kingdom? The person who did this to Janet was him? Not to mention, the person who Janet planned to assassinate was him all along?

Everyone initially thought they were hallucinating, but then they started to think that Mason must have hit his head really hard; otherwise, he wouldn't say something like this. What kind of a sick joke is this?

Henry's face was the epitome of shock as he asked, "That can't be true. Young Master Mason, did you hit your head really hard? Where's the doctor? Tell him to come over here quickly." He's definitely under the influence of the adrenaline that the doctor just injected in him. We can't let it affect his brain!

"I'm perfectly fine and I'm telling the truth. I am Prime Minister Welch and Jan wanted to assassinate me. No—to be precise, this is all a setup by the President. He is the one who made me and Jan kill each other. Also, she passed out because she lost all her strength after carrying me on her back."

The moment his words came out, everyone at the scene was stunned again. They stiffened in unison and it was as if their blood froze in their veins. Just like that, everyone was dazed and had completely lost their ability to think.

Logically, Mason doesn't need to lie to us at this point. Also, many things seem to point toward the fact that he really is Prime Minister Welch; otherwise, why did he appear in Ebony Town the same time as Prime Minister Welch's disappearance?

With this in mind, they could confirm that Mason really was Prime Minister Welch. After the initial shock, the atmosphere had now become awkward. After all, they were all actually cursing Mason just now right in front of him, and they were even wishing for his death.

Henry gulped. If it weren't for the strong tolerance of my heart, I would have passed out by now.

As for Lara and Desire, their attention was focused on the President after listening to Mason's words. If what Mason says is true, does that mean today is all a trap set by the President? No wonder we couldn't reach him before we came here. If this really is a trap set by him, then all of Janet's loyalty for him will really be for nothing.

Lara gritted her teeth while hints of viciousness appeared in her eyes. "Well done, Corey." I will make him regret belittling Janet.

"Desire, gather some men and launch an attack on the President Office after we alight from the plane," Lara instructed.

Flames of anger burnt in Desire as she thought to herself, Janet has never been fooled to such an extent by anyone before. Gritting her teeth, she growled, "Alright."

The man, who was embracing the girl, knitted his brows into a frown. Looking a little displeased, he coldly reminded, "Lower your voice; don't disturb Jan. As for the matter that involves Corey, I will settle scores with him in person after Jan regains consciousness."

The man's incredibly intimidating words instantly quietened them as soon as he said that.

It was a pin-drop silence in the plane.

"Mmm... Mason..." Suddenly, a woman's groan was heard in the quiet cabin.

Mason immediately lowered his head and saw the woman moaning his name with a slight frown.

It made his heart melt. He reached out his hand and gently stroked her cheeks as he whispered, "Babe, I'm here. Everything's fine. We are going back and nobody will harm you anymore. Be a good girl and listen to me—rest now."

Upon hearing his familiar voice saying that they were going back, Janet smiled in contentment. She slowly shut her eyes and nestled peacefully in the man's arms.

Mason's lips curled, revealing an incomparably affectionate smile.

Mason entered the ward of the First Hospital in Markovia with medicines in his hands.

"How is she? Is she awake?"

Lara shook her head. "No; she is probably too exhausted."

Upon hearing that, Mason sighed and placed the medicine on the table.

"Mr. Lowry, I am not sure if I should ask this..." Lara suddenly muttered.

The man remained silent for a moment before casting a glance at the woman on the bed and said, "Let's talk outside."

Janet needed to take a good rest and he did not want to disturb her.

After they left the ward, the man closed the door behind him.

Lara thought about it for a moment and finally decided to voice out all her doubts that she had been suppressing. "Mr. Lowry, if memory serves, not only explosives were found under Ebony Town, there were neurotoxins used by the military as well. Janet had taken the antidote of the neurotoxin before she reached there, which was why the poison did not have any effect on her. Could it be that you have taken the antidote in advance as well? Otherwise, why didn't the poison affect your body?" Could it be that he didn't inhale any neurotoxin when he was in Ebony Town? Or perhaps it was because he reached later?

With his lips pressed together, Mason seemed uncertain. "When I came of age, I consumed dozens of poisons, but I managed to survive through it. Perhaps I developed immunity against deadly poisons at that time. The mouthful of blood, which I spat out after I was injected with adrenaline, might be the residual toxin that remained in my body."

These were all his guesses.

Lara was stunned to hear that. Dozens of kinds of deadly poison? To make matters worse, it happened when he had just come of age? At that moment, Lara couldn't even find any words to describe her feelings.

All this while, she opined that this man before her was not a good match for Janet.

However, after hearing his explanation, her impression of him somehow improved a bit. It appears that there are still many things that I don't know about Mason. No wonder Janet has fallen for this man. It is fortunate that this is a relationship between two comparably strong individuals. Otherwise, I would feel bad for Janet.

At that moment, they suddenly heard a phone ringing.

Mason reached into his pocket and took out his phone.

Upon seeing that, Lara, who knew that she shouldn't take up his time for too long, let out an awkward smile. "Mr. Lowry, please excuse me."

The man nodded. "Miss Lara, please take care of yourself."

After Lara's figure had disappeared down the hallway, Mason picked up the call, and the familiar deep voice of a man was instantly heard from the other end of the line.

"Young Master Mason, I am finally able to reach you!"

"What's the matter?" Mason's voice was low.

These days, no matter how many times Robert had tried to call him, either the call didn't go through or nobody picked up his call, causing him to feel so flustered that he was close to tears.

Of course, the reason he made the call was because of Janet.
