Christina and Raphael left the guarded cave smoothly.

Along Raphael's route, there were no obstacles along their way, and those responsible for guarding the heavy guns fainted to the ground.

When Raphael passed by, he picked up a few nice guns and kicked some guards in the face.

Christina ran away with Raphael, who was calculating.

Lucy had said before that it was too hard to get her out, but Raphael did it proficiently as if he had done it often.

"Hey, give me back that half of the book." They entered the dense jungle and had escaped from the control of Chief.

Raphael turned around and asked coldly, "Can you understand it?"

"If you can't, it will be a waste in your hands."

After hearing this, Christina quickly said, "I know the Resurrection Spring!"

"So what? You want to threaten me?"

Raphael looked at her as if she were a fool and snorted arrogantly.

"You can only follow me now. Everything you have belongs to me, including what you think. Am I afraid that you won't tell me if I torture you? Am I afraid that you will run away? Do you want to run back to your father, or do you want to be eaten by a wild beast for lunch halfway?"

There was no expression on Christina's face. She could no longer refute.

She was dejected.

She could only follow him on the road.

Lucy was wrong about one thing. Even if she knew the location of the Resurrection Spring, it was not enough to counter this bastard, Raphael. Christina was bullied by him and could not refute at all.

Just as they were walking along the mountain road in the dark, a man and two women were enjoying themselves in the makeshift cottage at the foot of the mountain. Their bodies were intertwined, and the whole cottage was filled with intimacy.

Although Chief was old, he was still strong. Every night, when he was in the mood, he would ask two ladies to serve him together. Usually, they would play until late at night. The guards did not dare to disturb him.

"Chief."

Outside the cottage, the guard called out in a hurry. It was urgent, so he had to knock on the door.

There was no response from inside after he called out once.

"Chief, the Elders have something important to tell you." The guard's tone was vague but he spoke again

A roar came from inside. "Get out!"

In the middle of the night, his happy time was interrupted. Anyone would be furious.

The Elders stood outside the cottage, embarrassed and anxious. They looked at each other and hesitated. They were all afraid of offending the Chief.

The Second Elder straightened up, stood up straight, strode forward, and shouted in a loud voice, "Chief, we have something very important to discuss with you now!"

The guards and Elders outside the cottage immediately looked at him in worship.

Only the Second Elder dared to challenge the Chief's authority so openly. As soon as the Chief heard the voice of the Second Elder, his face immediately became gloomy. Of all the Elders, the one who always played gooseberry was him. What a bummer!

Reluctantly, the Chief sat up on the big bed and pushed the two women around him to put on their clothes. Mary and the Fifth Madam also looked very angry. They helped the Chief dress up first, then they quickly put on their clothes. It was only a temporary thatched house, so it wasn't magnificent. After a while, those Elders would meet with the Chief here.

The guards opened the door and the Elders lined up one by one to come in. The cottage was still filled with a strong atmosphere of intimacy. The Elders looked embarrassed and lowered their heads. It was indeed not appropriate to disturb the Chief in the middle of the night.

"What the hell happened!" Chief shouted with a gloomy face.

If it weren't for something urgent that couldn't be discussed tomorrow, he would have dragged them down one by one and cut them up.

The Seventh Elder was afraid of being implicated so he wanted to explain to Chief as soon as possible. He said with a trembling voice, "Chief, the book was stolen."

"Stolen?"

The Chief's tone became even more impatient. He was about to lose his temper because they would go to him for a book was stolen.

The Fifth Elder quickly added, "Chief, the stolen book is about how to use the Golden Scepter."

"Make it clear!"

The Fifth Elder said nervously and quickly, "Someone sneaked into our residence tonight and messed up our bed and belongings. After we finally tidied up, we found that there was a book missing. It was an ancient book about the Golden Scepter."

Chief became serious when he heard that the book was about the Golden Scepter.

"Who stole the book? Did you find it?"

The Elders all lowered their heads timidly, not daring to speak.

Chief looked at them angrily. "We have so many guards here that you can't even find a thief!"

"We have already locked up those meddling men. Who else could it be?"

At this moment, Mary, who was loosely dressed in a light purple luxurious silk robe, leaned over and whispered gently into the Chief's ear, "Raphael." She said the name in a low voice.

After he heard the name, the Chief's eyes suddenly became piercingly sharp.

"Raphael!"

Indeed, it was only his dear son who could do so.

"Send someone to lock Raphael up immediately!"

Since the Chief was in fury, the Second Elder looked up and said, "Chief, you can't convict him with just some words. It's more likely that it was someone else."

As he spoke, the Second Elder looked at Mary with more hostility.

Mary knew that the stubborn Second Elder had always been against her, but she still maintained a dignified smile. She asked gently, "Second Elder, who else do you think is except for Raphael?"

"Who else would it be that suddenly broke into your residence and snatched the ancient book? It's happened to be about how to use the scepter. I think we should find Raphael as soon as possible because I don't know what he's going to do after taking the ancient book away."

The Second Elder immediately retorted coldly, "Madam, although Raphael was suspicious, I don't think what happened tonight's that simple."

"Madam, where did you get the news that the stolen book's related had something to do with Raphael?"

"Did your bodyguards tell you so?"

The Second Elder's words were righteous and his tone was fierce. He continued to ask as if he was forcing a confession

Mary felt guilty when she saw his fierce eyes. She had indeed heard some news from her bodyguards a few hours ago. She was a smart woman, so she would not tell the Chief about it, but at this moment, her cunningness was not enough. She nervously tried to explain when the Chief turned to look at her indifferently.

Chapter 722

"Chief, I... My guard told me that something happened to the Elder." Mary was so nervous that she wanted to explain

However, the Second Elder quickly interrupted, "Madam, may I ask where your bodyguard is now?"

Mary looked puzzled, "Wasn't he outside guarding?"

The Second Elder sneered, "Madam, do you really don't know, or are you pretending? Your personal guard is a traitor. I suspect you came to our leader with an ulterior motive."

The Greatest Elder was furious and he was the first to refute.

"Andre! Pay attention to your words. Don't speculate without evidence and slander madam." The Greatest Elder was always protecting Mary.

The Second Elder looked at him disdainfully, "Fusco, we all know what you're thinking about. It's urgent now and I don't want to argue with you about your selfishness."

"Fusco, it was your book that was lost this time. We have reasons to suspect if you had colluded with outsiders long ago and sent the book out. Otherwise, how could those people be found so quickly in such a short time?"

The Greatest Elder was furious. "Andre, don't slander me!"

"If we hadn't had a mole, how could we have lost our ancient books, and those outsiders were rescued in such a short time? Even Miss, who was trapped in an iron cage had escaped."

"How would I know!"

The Greatest Elder and the Second Elder quarreled again.

Only their Chief showed a cold expression after hearing their talk. Suddenly, he became sullen and slapped Mary in the face.

He used so much strength that he left deep red bruises on Mary's light face. She was shocked and half of her face was numb with pain.

The Greatest Elder and Second Elder immediately fell silent.

Everyone lowered their heads in fear.

"You have a capable daughter." The Chief glared at Mary and gritted his teeth, saying in a gloomy tone.

"), L...' Mary was beaten so hard that her face and mouth hurt. She was so aggrieved that she sobbed, "My daughter, my daughter, is dead."

"Chief, I have been with you for so many years, don't you trust me? I ordered her to be killed to show my loyalty to you. She was already dead in the iron prison.

The Second Elder is slandering me."

These were all told to her by her bodyguard. When she came out of the guarded cave in a daze, the guard told her that he cut Christina's neck artery and blood gushed out. The guard helped her out when she was dizzy by the blood.

When the Second Elder heard this, he laughed sarcastically, "Madam, if you don't have ulterior motives, you are foolish."

"Your personal guard has disappeared!"

"Our people saw your bodyguard saved those outsiders."

At this moment, Mary's mind was in a mess, and she still didn't believe these words. Her bodyguard had followed her for many years, and he had helped her solve a lot of problems especially in the past few months. He solved everything perfectly and had been loyal to her and saved her life many times.

"Foolish!" The Chief looked angry and slapped her on the other side of the face. Mary was beaten so hard that she fell to the ground. She covered her painful face tightly and felt very aggrieved. She wanted to cry but did not dare to cry out.

When the Chief saw her like this, not only did he not feel pity for her, but he also felt more and more annoyed. He gave her a rough kick on the back and roared, "Get out, get out of here now!"

Seeing this, the Greatest Elder wanted to go up and hold Mary, but he couldn't. His head was lowered, and his eyes were filled with pity and worry.

Mary shivered awkwardly. She was trembling as she sat up and went out.

The Fifth Madam was also in the room and she was secretly happy to see this scene. With the favor of Chief, Mary always provoked them unscrupulously and didn't want them to live well. Seeing Mary being slapped made the Fifth Madam happy.

The Fifth Madam approached the chief intimately and said gently, "Chief, there's one thing I've never dared to tell you. Actually, those outsiders were all brought in by Mary, Mary even sneaked out of the island while you were out."

Since Mary was out of favor now, the Fifth Madam wanted to hit Mary when she was down to let Mary lose the Chief's favor forever.

However, the Chief was not happy to see anyone at this time. He rudely pushed the beautiful Fifth Madam hard and told her to go away.

He was tired of these women's intrigues.

In the past, he had enjoyed the jealousy of these women for him. But over time, he felt that no matter how beautiful they were, they couldn't compare to his first lady, Alisa.

Seeing the Chief treating his woman rudely, the Elders lowered their heads and did not dare to speak.

"Why are you still standing here? Send someone to chase them!"

The Chief stood up, holding the Golden Scepter in his right hand tightly, showing his supreme power.

He ordered angrily, "Bring back all those who escaped!"

es

At this time, Lucy and the others, who were running for their lives, shuttled through the thick trees and ran quickly in the night.

"Are there any pursuers behind?"

Charles couldn't run anymore and asked the person in front of him breathlessly.

"We can slow down and take a rest." Gary was not sure. He took a long breath and felt really hungry, tired, and thirsty.

"We can hide under the hillside ahead and rest for the time being." Lucy made an experienced suggestion after exploring the terrain ahead.

There was a meandering river at the foot of the hillside. The river was clean and they could drink its water.

"Lucy, I thought you were dead."

"Lucy, I didn't expect you to still be alive. We couldn't believe it when the boss mentioned you."

Gary and Crabbie rushed over and hugged her enthusiastically. They even pinched Lucy's face and chin to make sure that she was not a ghost.

"Damn it, stay away from me!" Lucy snorted.

She really can't stand their enthusiasm.

"Lucy, welcome back!"

It was so rare to be reunited after a long time. Gary held her head warmly and messed up her hair, "Lucy, you look very handsome pretending to be a man."

"How did you become Mary's bodyguard from Barbarian Island and dress up as a man?"

The team members echoed, "Lucy, you have an advantage with your flat chest. I think you are really no different from us. Hahaha..."

Lucy could be said to be their great savior. Now they were out of danger and everyone was in a good mood. They finally had time to relax a bit and joke.

Lucy was so speechless and thought why did she save these bastards.

Patrick squatted by the river and washed his face with cold river water. He stretched, stood up, and looked at the team members who were chatting happily.

Patrick suddenly asked, "Where is Christina now?"

Everyone quieted down and looked at Lucy.

Lucy felt an invisible pressure. She cleared her throat and replied calmly, "She, she's with Raphael."

Chapter 723

"Christina is imprisoned alone."

After calming down, they looked at Lucy in confusion. "Why didn't you save her?"

Lucy lurked beside Mary as a bodyguard for so long. She surely could save Christina.

"You even saved the tiger. How could you leave Christina behind?" Charles said to himself.

White Tiger was also imprisoned by the Chief's men when its leg was injured. Now, it was much better. It raised its head high and followed them majestically.

Samba, who was squatting by the river and gulped down the water, suddenly straightened up and shouted at Lucy fiercely. He was dissatisfied.

"Don't ask so much!" Lucy glared back angrily.

"Of course, I have my reasons. I don't need to explain to you."

At this moment, Patrick silently stared at Lucy's side face with his dark eyes.

Lucy was nervous and she was trying to figure out how to conceal the fact perfectly. Patrick took everything that was related to Christina seriously.

Gary and Alan winked at themselves. They all knew a secret very well- Lucy, this strong woman had a crush on Patrick at the first sight.

Many years ago, Patrick accidentally saved Lucy. After she was recovered, she showed her super physical agility, so she was arranged by Patrick to stay with him.

In the past days when she was innocent and young, Lucy followed behind Patrick all day long. Once, she confessed her love to Patrick but was coldly turned down by him. After that, Lucy, this crazy woman, even trained herself harder and became stronger.

Gary and Alan thought that it was possible that Lucy deliberately left Christina behind.

After all, she was not a Mother of God. If she had a chance to defeat her rival in love, of course, she would not lose it. She was not that type of kind and selfless person.

Lucy was very restrained under Patrick's scrutiny and she smiled. "Before that, I broke into the elder's place and stole an ancient book. Then I happened to meet Raphael and fought with him there. Raphael asked me to give the ancient book to him. The things written in the ancient books were all symbols and weird words, Raphael said he could understand them, and he would take the ancient book to save Christina."

"Of course, I can't trust him easily. In the end, we tore the ancient book into two, and we each held half of it."

"I spent great efforts in sneaking into the prison. When I prepared to bring Christina out, Raphael also barged in.

In order not to alarm more guards, I had to retreat. Raphael saved Christina. I think they have already escaped."

Lucy looked straight at Patrick as if she was telling the truth.

It had to be said that Lucy was really good at telling lies. Actually, Raphael didn't tell her that he would save Christina. She just guessed that.

Everyone listened with conviction.

Patrick continued to ask, "What is that book?"

Lucy replied seriously, "A book about the history of the Scepter and the way to use it."

"At that urgent moment, why are you still going to steal such an unimportant book?" Alan sighed.

Lucy glared at them scornfully and roared, "Although I don't understand those weird words, even Raphael paid great efforts to sneak in and steal it. If I guess right, this book is very important. If Christina can learn how to use the Scepter, we won't have to be so passive as to be suppressed by Chief."

"Is that Scepter that powerful?"

"Chief waved his Scepter that day. Those snakes, including us, were thrown far away by an invisible force..."

Alan and Gary were discussing.

Lucy blurted out, "That Scepter has recognized Christina as its master, but Christina, that fool, can't use it."

Patrick turned to look at her expressionlessly, and Lucy immediately shut up.

"There must be a reason why the Scepter was deliberately divided into three."

After careful consideration, Patrick felt that it was not good to recombine that three pieces of Scepter. It would probably bring disaster.

Lucy and Gary were seriously thinking about what he said, and just then, the Barbarian Samba suddenly howled, and all of them immediately turned around vigilantly.

Samba's mother, the Matriarch of the Barbarians, knelt on the ground with a sad face. She mumbled something, put her hands together, and prostrated herself before a big dead bird.

"What is she doing?"

Patrick and the others frowned as they looked at the Matriarch. It seemed that she was holding a memorial ceremony

Samba tried very hard to explain to them. However, no one could understand the Aboriginal Language. Lucy could disguise herself as a man to lurk beside Mary and save all of them, but she was really annoyed with these weird words and could not understand it at all.

Crabbie wandered around because he was hungry and wanted to pick up something to eat and he really picked up a few big birds.

Crabbie looked excited. "The birds here are crazy. They are flying and bumping into a tree. I guess they all want to kill themselves and reincarnate quickly."

The birds committed suicide.

Other team members also found two dead large wild boars by the river not far away. The bodies of the wild boars were warm, which indicated that they had just died. However, none of these animals had any wound, as if they had suffered sudden cardiac death.

The Matriarch put these dead animals in a pile and held a ceremony very piously. She knelt on the ground with a fearful face.

Even if Patrick and the others couldn't communicate with the Barbarians, they knew that this was not a good thing.

These animals began to die strangely one after another,

"The moving stone coffin caused a change in the island's magnetic field, and these birds and animals were strongly affected."

Patrick and the others discussed this.

Lucy said seriously, "Now, the most important thing is to find Raphael. He knows where the stone coffin is. Christina is taken away by him, and he probably has stolen the Scepter."

"Chief will definitely send more men to hunt them down."

Lucy waved her hand and chuckled guiltily. "Don't worry. I've fought with him before. It's not that easy for Chief to catch him. Christina is safe now. She's very safe."

In the night, the search team was chasing them.

Until the sky gradually brightened, there was still no progress in chasing Christina and Raphael.

Lucy was right. It was not easy for the Chief's men to catch Raphael and Christina.

It was a piece of cake for Raphael to elude their capture,

At present, he and Christina were relatively safe.

Christina followed Raphael all night. Apart from her personal dissatisfaction with Raphael, she finally survived

Chapter 724

However, Lucy was also wrong since Raphael didn't get the Scepter.

When Raphael was carefully flipping through the old book, Christina didn't disturb him. After all, she could not understand the language.

"What's the use of reading this ancient book?" Christina asked.

Christina did not understand why he could calmly read the book at such a critical moment.

She noticed some symbols of the Scepter and knew that the book was about the origin of the Scepter.

Raphael ignored her and kept reading with a great concentration in the dim light.

As Raphael took her to hide in a jungle, Christina could not figure out the exact location at this time and only knew that this place was not far from the great waterfall because she could hear the sound of the water rushing from the great waterfall.

She picked some wild fruits nearby and gave Raphael a few fruits since he occupied Derek's body. Although it was bad to eat fruits early in the morning, he still ate sour fruits honestly.

Raphael glared at her coldly, she immediately put out the little flame because they could be exposed by the fire. Christina reluctantly nibbled on the sour and astringent fruit.

On the contrary, Raphael picked up these big green fruits and ate them in two or three bites. He did not complain about the poor food at all.

Christina was a little curious about why this man with a hot temper was not very picky about food.

He seemed to have a bad relationship with Chief and the others.
Raphael, the young master, was also quite miserable because he lived alone since he was a child
"Come here!"
Raphael put the book aside and ordered her coldly.
Christina stopped thinking about him and walked over angrily and reluctantly,
"What's the matter?"
Just then, a black object fell straight from the sky.
"Idiot! Get out!" Raphael said.
Raphael pulled Christina over quickly. Christina was still frightened and noticed that it was a dead bird, instead of the Chief's men who were sneaking at them.
"I've seen this before" Christina examined the bird carefully to find no injuries and muttered, "During this period, many animals died inexplicably"
Raphael first glanced at the dead bird and was expressionless
Christina suddenly scolded him, "I know you did it. These animals were affected by the change in the earth's magnetic field and died suddenly."
"Now we should move the Stone Coffin back to its original position"
Raphael did not deny her accusations and sneered, "Do you want to be a hero and save the world?"
"I just want to save myself!" Christina answered.
Christina didn't care about his tone,
Raphael looked at her serious expressions and said coldly, "Sit down. Now you have to learn the incantations of these ancient characters."
"What?" Christina said.
Christina sat on the ground with her knees crossed reluctantly. When Raphael was speaking a series of incantations, Christina casually recited them.
In the end, Raphael took the vine to beat her. "You should pronounce it correctly!"
Since her tender hand was bruised by his beating, Christina screamed in pain.
Raphael whipped her a few more times. "Shut up! Don't scream here!"
A scream might attract others.
Christina glared at him. "Don't hit me!"
She wanted to attract attention by shouting and wished Patrick and the others could hear her and Lucy could save her. Christina wondered why she had to stay with this man.
"Don't think others."
Raphael glared at her coldly. "Do you think it's safe for you to be with Patrick and the others? You still have to rely on me if you want to leave this island in the end. Why don't you cooperate with me now? Otherwise, you don't want to go anywhere and die in the sea with this island!"
Christina glared at him and could do nothing.
"Sit down and study!" Raphael was impatient.
"What?" Christina angrily asked.
"This ancient book teaches you how to use the Scepter. Read the spell I read carefully!"
Christina was very disdainful. "It's just a broken book."
"You're so capable. Why don't you steal the Scepter as well?" Christina asked.
Raphael rarely argued with others so childishly and said angrily, "You think I'm a god. I pulled you out. Have you ever said a word of thanks? If I didn't save you, you would have died inside. If I could steal the Scepter, I would take my mother's body away, and I would not be willing to say another word to you here!"
Christina really forgot that he saved her.
If someone else had pulled her out of that prison, she would have been very moved. But she thought that Raphael was bullying her.

However, Christina didn't expect that he missed his mother and seemed to have a very good relationship with his mother.

Christina felt it strange that Raphael, a ruthless man, would work so hard to save his mother.

They suddenly fell silent and thought about something respectively.

Christina thought about some emotional problems.

Raphael, on the other hand, was thinking that the legendary Scepter actually recognized Christina, the idiot, as its master. Raphael felt that this was an insult to the Scepter.

If it weren't for Christina's inexplicable blood contract with the Scepter, he wouldn't have bothered to go to save her. He thought she was an idiot because she could not recite a spell.

"Study these. I can give you a promise in the future."

Raphael looked straight at her and gave her a solemn promise.

When hearing these words, she suddenly felt very uncomfortable and a little moved to look at Derek's face.

Chapter 725

"Study hard. I can give you a promise in the future."

Raphael suddenly spoke in a solemn tone.

"I don't want your promise." Christina was a little awkward.

"For example, when your man cheats on you in the future, I can help you beat him up as your brother-in-law," Raphael spoke seriously.

Christina was shocked when she heard him say the word "brother-in-law".

Christina didn't know how to deal with it. She said perfunctorily, "If my man cheats on me, I won't bother you. I'll castrate him on my own."

Finding that she was unwilling to give in, Raphael silently grip the vine in his hand. He really wanted to whip her again.

"As long as you help me this time, I promise to send you off the island safely."

"Recite the spell with me."

Christina noticed his frown, indicating that he was starting to be impatient. She quickly agreed, "I'll cooperate with you. You have to send us safely out of the island, and you have to ensure that Derek is safe and sound."

"Okay."

Raphael agreed readily and urged, "Now you work hard for me."

"Are you working so hard and doing so much for your mother?"

"Do you have a good relationship with your mother? What kind of person is your mother? Is she very gentle?"

Seeing that he was in a good mood, Christina took the opportunity to ask him a few questions. "If it's over. Will you be the leader after you send us off the island? Are you going to rebel?"

"I made it clear in advance that if you intend to start a rebellion and usurp the throne, this is your own business. Don't drag us into this. Patrick and the others are not willing to get involved."

Raphael listened to her chatter and the veins on his forehead throbbed in anger.

Christina also advised him enthusiastically, "Why don't you leave this island?"

Anyway, you don't like this island. Take your mother to leave the island with us. The world outside is bigger and wider. It's easy for a smart person like you to succeed outside..."

"Be quiet!"

Raphael's face darkened and he instantly regained his demonic nature. He hit her hard with the vine.

Christina stomped her feet. "Why did you hit me again for no reason?" She howled in pain.

Raphael waved the vine in his hand and threw it hard on the tree. "Sit down! Straighten up and be serious!"

Christina was so scared that she immediately sat cross-legged on the ground. She straighten up like a primary school student in the class and looked straight ahead, not daring to resist at all.

If Raphael was a teacher, he would definitely be a devil teacher.

"Study hard and read after me. If you don't read correctly, I'll slap you."

"You can't do that. I have no idea what you're reading at all! It's harder to read than the Barbarian's aboriginal language. I can't read it!"

As soon as Christina protested, Raphael looked cold and heartless. The whip on his right hand whipped again and hit her white and tender thigh with a bang.

People did not bleed when it hit people, but it was painful with internal injuries. Christina's face was ferocious with pain.

Raphael continued to read the symbols and characters handed down from ancient times. Christina listened and read after him.

However, Christina could not understand what she was reading. All she knew was that the vine hurt her much. And she howled and screamed from time to time.

"Don't hit me. I'll fight back."

"Ouch, it hurts! I can't read anymore!"

"Wait, wait... Slow down. I'm about to understand. Don't whip me. It hurts so much."

She was going to be whipped again.

Earl who was squatting by the side could not help but sigh. It turned its butt to Christina and did not even want to look at her.

As the master of the Scepter, Christina was so untalented.

vas

Christina had not learned the old spell yet, but her skin was already full of marks of whipping. It was really too miserable.

Raphael was tired of slapping her.

The two of them glared at each other.

"Even if you hit me, I can't make it!"

Christina had given up.

"I'm hungry now, I'm dizzy, and my brain is asleep. I want to eat, I want to eat meat!" She demanded.

Raphael gritted his teeth in anger.

He had imagined that he might have one or two brothers and sisters. After all, his father was a dissolute man. But he never thought that Christina could be so stupid.

His hands were even sore from hitting her. How dare she stand up straight and demand so much?

Raphael would be whipped if he made mistakes in his childhood. He knew that if he wanted to be beaten less, he had to obey and do things perfectly.

How dare Christina demand it without doing a good job? She needed a spanking.

Raphael looked grim and heartless as he approached her step by step. Christina felt a crisis. "What are you doing? Don't come over."

"I really have to study hard. It's too difficult... I'm about to learn. Don't hit me again. It hurts."

Christina kept explaining and retreated warily.

Raphael smiled at her strangely and remained silent. He threw the whip on his right hand directly to the ground, then pulled out a black shotgun from his waist and aimed it at her.

Christina got nervous in an instant. She knew that Raphael was unpredictable. Their relationship was useless, and he would really kill her.

"I, I will study hard. I will read it. Mo nai mo ke mo rosa... No, it's wrong. I, I will read it again."

Christina nervously opened her mouth and read. She kept retreating and hit a big tree with her back.

Raphael's face was cold. The muzzle of the gun was aimed straight at her. With a bang, the bullet narrowly missed her head and hit the tree. Christina was so scared that her legs were weak and her mind was blank.

Christina shivered. "You, you put the gun down first!"

Raphael remained silent, with a sneer on his lips. He continued to raise his gun and aim at Christina's head.

Christina endured the trembling of her body and forced herself to concentrate. Her voice trembled a little. "I, I'll read... Monai mosa moluosa deyink..."

At this moment, a powerful invisible force flew towards them from far to near.

An ancient golden Scepter of 1.7 meters inlaid with ruby suddenly appeared.

Even Raphael and Earl were shocked. The Scepter was already tightly held in Christina's right hand, and the ruby at the head of the Scepter emitted a dazzling blood-red light.

It was dizzy and radiant.

The Elders who were camping in the distance were all shocked. "What happened?"

Chapter 726

The Chiefs Scepter had been shaking slightly since this morning as if it was summoned

This ancient golden Scepter could only be touched by their Chief Ordinary people would be scalded by the heat of the Scepter, which was as hot as lava. It was also the representation of the nobility of the Chief This Scepter symbolized supreme power, and only the Chief could hold it.

The Chiefs face took on a ghastly expression since the morning because he could not control the Scepter The Scepter kept shaking as if someone was challenging his authority The Chief tried his best to stop the shaking but failed

In the morning, the Elders had already noticed this strange phenomenon

However, they only lowered their heads and made their own assumptions secretly. They did not want to say it because they noticed that the Chief's face darkened.

"What's going on?" The Chief gritted his teeth and shouted. He tried to restrain the power of the Scepter

The seven weak Elders were taken aback and exchanged doubtful glances. They did not dare to speak out Finally, the Second Elder stepped forward and said bluntly, "The Scepter is shaking because it is summoned by its owner"

The Chief got furious and stood up upon hearing what he said "Bullshit! It belongs to me! He raised his Scepter and swung it fiercely at the Second Elder's side face

The Chief used all his strength, and the Second Elder was knocked down by him immediately The Second Elder's left face was burned and badly swollen due to the contact with the Scepter

The rest of them were so scared that they all kept their mouth shut and didn't dare to say a single word.

Although the Chief beat the Second Elder, he could not give vent his anger. The Scepter in his hand was still shaking as if it was struggling to free itself, The Chief tightened his grip on the Scepter and inserted it a few inches deep into the earth.

"It's the ancient book"

"The stolen ancient book."

"Only my good son Raphael was able to read that ancient book among all of them.

The Chief guffawed loudly, but his face was hideously diabolic

Although the Chief held the Scepter tightly with all his strength, it was summoned and shook more violently Then, he could not control it anymore.

Suddenly, the Scepter New out of the earth, and the palm of the Chief was scratched and bleeding

The Chief's face darkened. Blood oozed out of the wound in his big palm.

He muttered, "Raphael actually saved his sister and taught her to recite spells.

He really cherishes his sister."

The people present did not even dare to breathe heavily. They all lowered their heads and remained silent.

"Why are you still waiting? What a good-for-nothing you are!"

The Chief raised his head, his eyes filled with blood and fire. Then, he shouted,

"Go and find him now!"

"I will take the first lady with me. I want to see what the hell my good son wants to do." The Chief gritted his teeth and spoke in a sinister tone.

To deal with Raphael, his mother, Alisa, was his Achilles' heel.

As long as the Chief held Alisa hostage, his son can only get caught without any resistance.

A large group of guards gathered and headed toward the trace of the Scepter in a rush.

A strange sound sounded from the dense jungle as if a large group of people was passing by in a hurry. At that moment, Patrick and Lucy stayed hidden deep in the hillside.

"It should be the Chief's army."

Gary and the others immediately became nervous. "According to their footsteps, there seemed to be a lot of people. They may know that we are hiding here and have surrounded us. Everyone should stay alert."

Charles held a shotgun in his right hand and hid behind a big tree, waiting for the enemy in terror.

However, to their surprise, the group of people of the Chief seemed to be just passing by, and they did not bother to look around. They were in such a hurry as if they were chasing after someone.

Patrick, Lucy, and the others climbed up the hill and watched these guards running away hurriedly.

"Why are Chief's troops hurrying on with their journey?" Gary and the others were quite confused.

Patrick thought for a moment. "They have found where Raphael is."

Compared to them, the Chief must be more eager to catch Raphael and Christina.

"Their men were searching around last night. They were not so edgy. Something must have happened."

Gary and Alan were discussing it.

Charles asked, "White Tiger has gone out to look for Christina. Hasn't it come back yet?"

The smell is keener in animals, especially their White Tiger, which was pretty intelligent, so they let the White Tiger search for Christina last night.

Patrick packed his things up, including his weapons, and he was about to set off immediately.

The old matriarch of the barbarian stood in his way and mumbled a lot in the native language of the barbarian, but Patrick did not understand what she meant. Everyone looked at the anxious expression on her face and they seemed to realize that none of them could leave.

Since last night, Patrick and his companion were planning to search for Christina, but the old matriarch of the barbarian somehow was trying to stop them. It seemed that the right decision was to stay and wait.

Therefore, due to the trust for the old matriarch of the barbarian, they had to let the White Tiger leave for the mission and they stayed here waiting for news. However, half a day had passed and the White Tiger had not returned yet, and the Chief's men unexpectedly ran past in a hurry. Patrick had lost his patience. No matter how dangerous it was, he had to catch up with the Chief's troops to see what happened. There was a possibility that Christina was in danger.

wa

The old matriarch of the barbarian felt that she could not persuade Patrick to stay, so she grabbed Samba and shook him anxiously. She wanted Samba to discourage them from leaving since it would be extremely dangerous.

Samba, on the other hand, held different opinions from his mother. He shook his head at her.

"We need to find the Human Cub," Samba said to the old matriarch of the barbarian.

Patrick and the others did not understand the native language of the barbarians, but they were surprised to see the old matriarch slapping Samba angrily, and then she picked up the dead animal body on the ground and threw it to their front.

There was deep grief on the face of the old matriarch of the barbarian, and her eyes were full of fear and uneasiness.

Everyone knew what she meant at that moment in spite of the language barrier. The old matriarch indicated that there was something horrible ahead and they might get killed if they left.

Lucy stepped forward and patted the old matriarch on her thin shoulder casually.

"We came from another island and we don't believe in ghosts and gods."

Then, she turned to smile arrogantly at Gary, "Let's go. Mr. Hopkins has gone far."

They immediately packed up their weapons and climbed up the hillside. The old matriarch looked at them helplessly and sighed.

She tried to persuade them to quit, but it was useless

Just like the owner of the island persisted in marrying the first lady Alisa and the young master did not listen to the dissuasion and broke into the moving Stone Coffin of the Third Island, these people from other islands were as stubborn as a mule.

"They are heading to the Great Waterfall?"

Since the Chief's troops passed by and left a trace on the surrounding grass and trees, Patrick and Lucy easily followed them over and found out that the Chief's destination seemed to be the water cave at the Great Waterfall.

"What are they going there? Are they still looking for that big snake?"

Fear clutched at Gary and his companions' hearts when they remembered that they were nearly killed when facing the Snake God, Nagar.

Lucy stared at the waterfall pouring down in front of her and then she smiled with confidence. "That's right. It's here. It is the resurrection spring that Raphael is looking for."

"Actually, the resurrection spring that Raphael tried so hard to find is Nagar's eyes."

Chapter 727

"Calm down."

Raphael looked nervously at the woman in front of him, and even Earl, the black cat, arched its body and bristled its fur vigilantly.

"I, I don't know."

Christina felt as if her whole body had been burned by a fire.

She could not throw away the Scepter in her hand, no matter how hard she tried.

The Scepter would always return to her palm.

"What should I do now?" She felt terrible.

She felt very hot and uncomfortable. Scant of breath, she was anxious, afraid, and flustered.

"What did you teach me to say... I feel terrible. Help me."

Christina was struggling in pain and knelt on the ground faintly, her left hand desperately grabbing her hair and her right hand holding the Scepter. She angrily threw it at a big tree opposite but the Scepter returned to her palm again.

As long as she held the Scepter, she was suffering as if her internal organs had been burned by the fire.

Raphael didn't mean to torture her in this way, and he didn't know why this happened. Since there was no record in the ancient books, he was a little panicked, and even Earl looked at this scene in astonishment.

Then, something magical happened.

All of a sudden, the plants in the dense and green jungle withered and turned yellow at a rapid speed, and even the roots of the grass were rotten. The leaves of the big trees of the whole jungle fell collectively, and soon only the bare brown branches were left.

Raphael and Earl stiffened in disbelief.

The light withered grass was blown up into the sky, and the fallen leaves were scattered in a disorderly manner by the wind. A lush land was instantly turned into a wasteland.

"I feel terrible. I want to throw this Scepter away!"

Christina still grabbed her hair in pain. Disheveled, she grimaced with blame and resentment.

"You hurt me on purpose!" Her voice became hoarse and deep.

"Raphael, you used me again and again!"

She looked up at him with resentment.

Raphael noticed that her usually clear eyes became cloudy, and her eyes were gradually bloodshot. She became manic as if her consciousness was being replaced by something.

"I'll let you suffer." She muttered softly

Then, as if she had suddenly been free from the pain, she stood straight, holding the 5.5-inch gold Scepter in her right hand. She became aloof and cold with the Scepter like a queen.

Raphael flew up in the air, and then floated in midair in panic. "You, you have to control your emotions. Calm down."

Before he was over, he was thrown by a force and hit the tree pole. Then, he was hurt with his face bruised, his nostrils bleeding, and then he coughed and panted in pain.

Christina walked up to him with the Scepter in her right hand and indifferently looked at Raphael, who was quite helpless.

Furious, Earl rushed over to attack her. It was small, swift, and had sharp with poisonous claws, which was even able to entangle with the Snake God Nagar. She did not turn around, as if she had already sensed the attack behind her. She waved her Scepter slightly and Earl seemed to be thrown up high in the sky by a powerful force. It was so scared because of the feeling of weightlessness that it meowed in panic.

As long as it fell, it was bound to die.

"Christina, don't hurt Earl!" Raphael gasped and shouted.

She was actually not interested in the life of the black cat.

She looked straight at him with her bloodshot eyes. "You destroyed the magnetic field of my island." A man's voice came from her throat, old, and powerful.

"I made a rule that no one is allowed to move the Stone Coffin. You broke my rule and destroyed my island." She was filled with anger.

She pointed the Scepter at Raphael furiously.

Although he had been mentally prepared, he did not expect he was in extreme pain after falling. All his bones and internal organs seemed to have been crushed.

He could not move and could only breathe weakly.

It was quite easy for her to kill him.

Raphael could not make any sound and felt that it took all his strength to breathe.

At this time, Christina was like another person and ignored him.

The man was the owner of the Island a thousand years ago before the Scepter was broken up.

Without saying another word, she dragged Raphael away.

At this moment, Raphael was almost at his last gasp. She straightened her back and held the Scepter like a queen walking in front. Raphael's body floated slightly on the ground, which was dragged behind her by an invisible force.

Earl flew up into the clouds millions of meters high and fell at an extremely fast speed. The fluster of such a jump made Earl meow in astonishment. It instinctively kept waving its claws in the air, as frightened as if it had met a natural enemy.

She didn't kill it. She slowed down the descent in the last few hundred meters and finally let it fall steadily into a pile of withered grass.

Earl was almost scared to death.

It was still in shock.

Earl, which used to be extremely brave, now had no strength to get up, watching helplessly as she led Raphael towards the Great Waterfall.

Earl knew that she was not Christina, but the real owner of the Scepter.

The Scepter was deliberately divided into three parts, hidden in the different locations of the three islands so that the future generations would not get the Scepter to reappear in the world.

The records had long been forgotten.

The Scepter confused the human and occupied the human body. Its real master would reappear invincibly in the world, possessing supreme divine power.

Raphael taught her to recite the ancient spell, never expecting this to happen.

He slowly opened his eyes, witnessing that the Water Column flowing down the Great Waterfall was actually separated into two streams to make way for her.

She walked like a queen into the Waterfall Cave but was not wet at all.

The only way to enter the cave was through the narrow and dark passageway, the walls of which were actually ablaze with flames. This blood-red flame that appeared out of thin air floated on the wall and extended deep into the inner part of the cave.

The dark, dirty, and stinky cave was illuminated by the eerily floating blood-red fire, and the whole cave suddenly lit up

The blood-red light illuminated the damp and gloomy cave,

At the same time, Raphael, who had been brought in by invisible forces, suddenly lost his support and fell to the ground.

This was the place where she wanted to bring him.

It was the cave of the Snake God Nagar.

"Come out." She ordered.

Frightened, Nagar shrank into a ball and did not dare to approach her at all.

Feeling pain all over his body, Raphael noticed that Nagar was afraid.

Just then, a group of brainless people rushed in.

"Raphael!"

The subordinates of the Chief roared aggressively.

"Raphael, you traitor!"

In the eyes of the Chief, only Raphael could understand the stolen ancient book and must have plotted to use that woman to steal the Scepter.

The Chief was furious and shouted in the cave, "Raphael, your mother, Alisa, is in my hand. Hand over the Scepter, or I will burn her body."

The Chief used this trick to blackmail Raphael every time, which restrained Raphael for many years.

"Alisa."

Someone slowly called out the familiar name in a hoarse and old voice in the cave.

The Chief and his subordinates had completely broken into the Waterfall Cave and calmed down after they heard the voice.

There were others in the cave.

Moreover, they almost forgot that there was a dangerous Snake God, Nagar, in the cave. However, they didn't understand why Nagar was so quiet, since the last time, Nagar was furious and shook the valley with its huge body, trying to break through the Great Waterfall.

Also, the cave was so brightly illuminated.

The floating blood-red flames on the mountain wall were so strange.

At this moment, the Chief began to panic.

"Raphael!"

The Chief looked shocked, seeing Alisa fly into the air when he was about to ask.

"Who are you?"

"Who are you?" The blood-red light around them blurred their vision. The elders saw the figure holding the Scepter in the middle of the cave.

She laughed arrogantly and said in a hoarse and deep voice. "Who am I? I am the real owner of this island." The voice resounded through the cave.

She was the real owner of the island.

Chapter 728

Alisa's body flew into the air and floated in midair.

Chief, the seven Elders, and the guards all looked up in astonishment and disbelief.

When blood-red flames were floating in the dark and damp Waterfall Cave, a familiar and strange figure stood in the middle of the cave.

"Alisa."

"Christina," said in a deep voice with the Scepter in her hand and bloodshot eyes.

She repeated the name nostalgically and muttered. "Alisa."

Alisa's body floated horizontally and moved towards "Christina".

"Christina" at this time was tall and straight and carefully scanned Alisa's body like a man.

"It's so nostalgic."

After thousands of years, Alisa, the loyal servant, was still so young and beautiful.

"Christina" was doubtful. "Nagar's fang?"

Alisa was like a freshly preserved corpse and was pierced by Nagar's fang in her heart.

"Who killed Alisa?" She asked slowly in a hoarse voice.

"Christina" suddenly turned around and looked around without any emotion in her eyes.

No one answered her.

The Chief and the others were all a little scared and held their breath in fear. But the Chief shouted ferociously, "Put my wife down!"

The Chief was commanding and roaring angrily since he would not allow anyone to touch his wife without his permission

"Your wife?" "Christina" muttered thoughtfully.

As a result, "Christina" smelled Alisa's body floating closer in the air.

Then she suddenly said, "Alisa is no longer a virgin."

"Since Alisa promised to protect my island for me forever, I gave her the power to live and die," "Christina," said.

"She married to a mortal."

"Christina" sneered, "What a fool."

Everyone heard her talking to herself. The one who claimed to be the real owner of the island held the Scepter with bloodshot eyes.

The Chief solemnly shouted at the scared guards, "Shoot!"

The guards seemed to forget that they were carrying heavy weapons. The Chief took the lead in pulling out his pistol from his waist and fired without hesitation.

Then, everyone shot "Christina". But, these guns and ammunition could not touch her at all and were all bounced back.

Ah...

The Waterfall Cave echoed with heartbroken cries of pain. The guards were shot by the rebounded bullets and fell to the ground and wailed in pain.

The Chief shot out all the bullets in his gun and noticed in horror that the guards beside him fell to the ground after being shot.

Though he seemed to be frightened by the situation and spoke intermittently, he still shouted, "You, you dare to disobey me. I am the master of this island. I am the Chief here!"

The weak Elders who hid behind the big stone shivered and didn't take any action.

The guards with guns immediately threw away the weapons because the more bullets they shot, the faster they died.

Everyone became panicked.

Only the Chief was still struggling to regain his status and identity and was angry because the daughter in the middle stole the power which belonged to him.

"Bastard, give me the Scepter!" The Chief ordered.

"Christina", who was standing in the middle of the cave, asked in a hoarse voice.

"You are the man Alisa loved."

At the same time, there was huge black gravel in the Waterfall Cave, weighing thousands of kilograms.

The huge stone flew up in the air and flew to the Chief quickly.

Everyone screamed in shock. "Chief, be careful."

"Be careful!"

At this moment, the Chief was too scared to move. A loyal guard rushed towards him and the two fell to the side.

Thousands of kilograms of huge rubble brushed past them, and with a loud crash, hit the mountain wall.

The mountain also quaked.

When everyone looked at the deep pit on the mountain wall, they were shocked and silently looked at the Chief who had been scared to death with a pale face. If the Chief had been hit by the huge rock, he would have been killed on the spot. Even Raphael looked at his father and thought he was lucky to survive and also stupid to shout at Christina.

At this time, Christina found something interesting and muttered in confusion, "The Holy Grail?"

The two Holy Grails which were covered by cloth in Raphael's bag flew into the air.

She interestedly looked at them carefully.

"Are you Alisa's son?"

She re-examined Raphael and asked him coldly, "You want to save her?"

The Holy Grail could indeed save Alisa.

Raphael got up with great difficulty and leaned his back against the mountain wall to take a few breaths.

"I want to save my mother," he said frankly.

Raphael knew very well that the woman in front was not Christina.

She might really be able to save his mother.

"Of course, I could save your mother."

She looked straight into his eyes and understood his intention.

Raphael was scared by her words and was also very surprised.

His mother could be saved.

The Chief over there was frightened by the huge rubble just now and heard their conversations.

The Chief looked suspiciously at Raphael and Christina.

"Christina" glanced at the Chief and sneered, "Your stupid father seems to be eager for your mother's resurrection."

Everyone present was shocked, especially Raphael since his father caused his mother's death.

The Chief did not refute.

"You want to save her?"

"But Alisa doesn't want to wake up."

"Christina" sneered. "She said she regretted it. She would rather close her eyes forever than see that man."

The Chief was suddenly furious. "Shut up! Don't talk nonsense!" He forgot he narrowly died just now.

"Christina" just laughed.

She didn't care about Alisa's man and her family.

"Christina" learned from Alisa that she regretted marrying this man and not looking after her son and resented other women.

"Alisa, you actually forgot the promise you made to me," Christina solemnly said. Raphael suddenly was afraid that she would hurt his mother's body. "My mother has been protecting this island for you for too long."

"Really? It's been so long."

"Alisa did a good job before, but it's a pity."

Just then, a fierce beast rushed in through the narrow entrance of the Waterfall Cave and roared.

The White Tiger roared at Christina since it knew that it was not Christina.

"Ever since I left, there have been fewer and fewer Spiritual Beasts on the island."

She held the Scepter in her hand and stared arrogantly at the White Tiger.

Knowing that it could not defeat her, it did not move.

*This woman in flesh is your master. You want to protect her?" "Christina" began to talk to the White Tiger.

Tused to have a Spiritual Beast too," she paused and suddenly shouted, "Nagar." "Nagar, do you hate me for suppressing you in this waterfall? Do you really want to leave this place?"

Nagar who had been curled up in a corner with a huge snake body stuck out its head hesitantly and looked at her

Nagar looked at her for a long time.

Nagar began to wriggle slowly and said, "I've been trapped here for a thousand years."

"I'm not afraid of death anymore," Nagar answered.

"Really?" She smiled.

Nagar immediately begged for mercy. "I did try to break through the Great Waterfall, but being trapped for a thousand years was too painful. All my previous mistakes have been atoned for, haven't they? I didn't mean to betray you."

Nagar begged for mercy in a humble tone.

But before Nagar could finish speaking, the head of the snake seemed to be out of control and was pressed to the ground by an invisible force.

Nagar lost his eyes in fear.

Nagar kept bleeding.

The two holy cups that floated over were filled with two cups of blood.

One glass of blood was poured into Alisa's mouth, and the other was poured on the head of Nagar.

It was such a strange and bloody scene.

When the sharp fang that pierced Alisa's left chest and heart naturally fell and the wounds on her body immediately healed, she gradually came to life with the reddish face.

Alisa was resurrected.

Nagar was blind.

"From now on, Alisa and Nagar share a life."

Alisa and naga were servants and slaves for life and could not betray the oath.

The Chief, Raphael, and others were stunned.

The controller in the middle of the cave was expressionless.

Chapter 729

After the Snake God, Nagar, was blind, it became extremely ruthless. It threw its huge body onto the valley regardless of that might get it killed, causing the earth to tremble

The rubble on the wall of the Waterfall Cave kept falling,

"We should run for our life."

"Chief, let's get out of here." The elders were frightened like cats on hot bricks by the falling boulders,

Some guards ran out of the Waterfall Cave to keep their lives without waiting for the Chief's order.

"Who allowed you to leave?"

Christina stood in the middle of the Waterfall Cave, ignoring all the falling boulders. Her eyes were bloodshot, and she stood tall and straight steadily with a scepter in her right hand. Her hoarse and deep voice echoed in the cave.

With a wave of the scepter, the furious Nagar was instantly stopped and could not move.

It was fixed firmly like a model.

At that moment, the trembling ground quieted down,

"Nagar, since you have been sick of being trapped by the Great Waterfall for a thousand years, I will let you off from this valley today." The old and ethereal voice came...

Patrick, Lucy, and others were on their way to the waterfall as fast as possible. Suddenly, the ground started to shake.

They stopped in horror and squatted down vigilantly, wondering what was happening. Was it an earthquake?

When they looked up, they saw the mountain behind the Great Waterfall on the opposite fall down.

The whole towering mountain collapsed easily like tofu, everything on it rolled down with a huge roar, which was like a colossal mudslide. The mountain in front of them, which was magnificent before, was gone.

The Waterfall Cave under it also crumbled to dust.

Patrick, Lucy, Gary, and others were all shocked, couldn't believe their eyes. wer

The surging Great Waterfall instantaneously disappeared as well.

The majestic mountain body had peeled off, and the Great Waterfall disappeared with it. Instead, an incomparably huge and black rock showed up in front of them. Nobody could tell how big it was. It pierced deeply into the earth, and the exposed part was like a smooth and steep mountain.

"The meteorite."

Lucy quickly recognized that the black rock mountain was the same as the small meteorite on the Barbarian Island.

How could there be such a big one?

When the meteorite fell from the sky, it should have caused a huge global disaster.

"This super meteorite should be the center of the island's magnetic field."

Everyone thought this in their minds at the same time.

The shaking of the earth gradually calmed down. They immediately stood up and watched the magnificent meteorite, which made them be awed by nature.

Patrick, on the other hand, stared at the original Waterfall Cave with a pale face. Now, nothing was left there.

He rushed over with all his might.

"Mr. Hopkins!" Gary shouted behind him.

At this moment, they suddenly understood why the Matriarch of the Barbarian had been stopping them from moving forward. If they had reached the Waterfall Cave earlier, then they might be buried under the ground and dead.

From far, the animals' agitated and uneasy roars kept coming. Their shrill cries echoed in the valley, making people feel a little creepy.

At the same time, Lucy and the others watched many large birds fly up from the jungle, seeming to be panicked, making shrill screams in the sky.

In the sky, more and more large birds were flying around. They even collided with each other in extremely uneasy manners. Some of them even collectively bumped into the huge black meteorite and fell to their deaths.

Not far away, the carnivorous beasts of the jungle, as well as the docile herbivores, were whimpering restlessly or roaring angrily.

Everything seemed so strange.

Lucy and Charles looked around in horror. All these whimpering and roaring made them tense up.

Originally, this huge meteorite was wrapped in mountains and covered by waterfalls. Now that the meteorite was exposed to the air, it seemed to have a great impact on the animals around them, making them unconsciously become restless.

"I feel a little uncomfortable."

In order to catch up with Patrick in front of him, Charles ran forward like mad as well, but as he ran, he felt that it was getting hard and uncomfortable to breathe. He gradually stopped and panted.

Charles was not the only one, even the well-trained Crabbie felt not at par. "I'm feeling that my heart suddenly beats too fast."

Crabbie felt his own pulse. He found that his blood pressure was high with his heart beating faster, along with his breathing becoming rapid.

The other team members had such symptoms either.

Lucy's face was flushed from her accelerating heart rate, she cursed, "What a crap place!"

The huge meteorite would have an impact on all the creatures around, including them.

When they arrived at the original location of the Waterfall Cave, Samba started to dig in the soil sadly, thinking that Christina had been buried underground.

Samba felt sorrow, digging through the thick black soil with his bare hands, but there were so many huge rubbles and the mud layer was too thick.

Whoever buried here must have died for long.

Patrick arrived a few minutes earlier. He looked at the barren mud with a deathly pale face and stood still.

Samba was a Barbarian without evolution. His mind was simple and reckless, so he would not think that if someone was buried, he or she would definitely die. He focused on using his own power to dig, to do anything he could

The others stood there, being silent and motionless. Lucy and Gary knew the reality very well. If Christina and Rafael were near the Great Waterfall, they would not have escaped from the collapse.

However, after a while, Samba excitedly tugged at Patrick to tell him that he had found something!

Patrick remained in a daze when being called, he turned to look at the exciting Samba, who was digging up some of the black and sticky soil on the ground, revealing a part of a body.

Everyone rushed over immediately. It was not the human body that was covered by the mud. It was a snake body, the huge snake body. Gradually, they realized that the Snake God, Nagar, seemed to be fixed by time.

Nagar's huge body hovered with its head raising, but it froze and didn't move.

Patrick and the others looked up and noticed that Nagar had been hurt in its eyes, seemingly was blinded by something

Just as they raised their heads and stared at Nagar, the Matriarch of the Barbarian, who had always been uneasy, suddenly knelt down and bowed. She was in a panic and kept muttering, clasping her hands, and banging her forehead against the mud.

Patrick and Lucy whirled around and looked over.

The Matriarch raised her head to look at the top of the huge meteorite, and then lowered her head in awe and fear, kowtowing devoutly.

Patrick followed her gaze and was surprised. There was a figure on the top of the smooth and huge meteorite.

"There's someone up there."

Charles screamed in shock, pointing at the top of the meteorite, which was like a steep and smooth peak.

My Billionaire Husband Spoils Me Too Much Chapter 730

Chapter 730

At this moment, the Stone Coffin was right under their feet.

The magnetic field on the island was seriously disturbed, not only causing major disasters but also making many animals die inexplicably.

It was said that the "Stone Coffin" recorded in the ancient book had disturbed the magnetic field on the island. They did not know the location of the Stone Coffin, so they could do nothing about the natural disaster.

"You don't know either?"

The old, angry voice came from Christina's throat. She looked angry, waved her Scepter, and looked at the so called current Chief and the Greatest Elder in front of her.

This magical island was formed entirely because of this huge meteorite that fell from the sky. The meteorite had special magnetic forces, so they couldn't even move a small part of it.

The people who had discovered this a thousand years ago had set a rule. The rule was passed down from mouth to mouth, which warned future generations that they could never break into the Third Island and alarm the huge rock that gave life to the island.

In fact, the Chief and the Greatest Elder knew the location of the Stone Coffin long ago.

Their helplessness in face of the disaster was just an excuse.

She

At first, they were lucky, but later when things got messy, they chose to avoid the matter.

The Chief and the Greatest Elder looked shocked and helpless because they flew into the air and couldn't control their hands and feet. They looked at the woman holding the Scepter in fear.

Everyone was silent and lowered their heads. No one dared to say anything.

They were terrified. The sun was blazing in the sky, and the sun was so bright.

The Chief and the Greatest Elder flew up in the air, screaming in fear, and casting two shadows on the ground.

Their revered Snake God, Nagar, was easily blinded. The magnificent waterfall suddenly stopped flowing, and the deep and huge water shade cave collapsed.

The snake god, Nagar, was pinned down, and all of them jumped up to the peak of the Great Waterfall.

It turned out that the Stone Coffin was above the Great Waterfall, and the entire majestic mountain waterfall contained the magnetic field center of the island.

The mountain collapsed and everything revealed its original shape. This ancient and huge meteorite was also exposed, and they were standing on top of it.

The moment the mountain collapsed, she thought that all of them would be buried alive.

She deliberately saved them. But the punishment was not over yet. She wanted them to witness something and would not spare anyone who broke the rules.

Christina showed a stern expression that did not match her original personality.

She waved the Scepter, and two thick branches on the ground suddenly stood up, while the Chief and the Greatest Elder in the air suddenly fell down. The tip of the thick branches poked their flesh, and the sound of tearing was accompanied by blood gushing out

The Chief and the Greatest Elder looked pale in fear. When they gradually regained their senses, they looked down at the branches that pierced through their chest ribs. The intense pain made their faces gradually pale and they had no strength to shout. They could only pant, tremble, and sweat.

This was a punishment for the Chief and the Greatest Elder.

No one dared to speak, and their hearts trembled.

Raphael dragged his injured body to his mother's side with all his strength. He ignored the punishment. He only cared about why his mother hadn't woken up since she had drunk the blood from the pupils of Nagar.

Alisa still closed her eyes tightly and slept peacefully. Her skin and face were slightly ruddy as if she was just asleep and would wake up at any time.

Alisa was a servant responsible for guarding the island, but she was tired of living long ago.

The wound on her body had been healed, but she was unwilling to wake up.

At the same time, Raphael also saw his original flesh body. Because he was afraid of being persecuted by Mary, he chose to hide his flesh body near the Stone Coffin from the beginning. He thought that only he himself could find this place. It turned out that his father had been pretending to be stupid.

Raphael's flesh body was tall and thin, and his face was more like his mother's. He was handsome and had light gold shoulder-length hair, like a person carved by god, flawless.

It was a pity that Raphael had multiple wounds on his chest and arms because he was abused and beaten in his childhood.

Raphael had promised Christina that he would save Derek Fisher's flesh body, but now, there was nothing Raphael could do. When Raphael recovered a little, he would return to his flesh body, and Derek could only disappear.

The people in power on their island seemed to have a common characteristic. They were cold-hearted.

His father's chest was pierced by a thick branch, bleeding incessantly. He was groaning in pain for help. Several loyal guards walked over and whispered their condolences, but they had no choice. Raphael didn't even look at his father.

"You killed so many creatures on the island. The punishment is far from enough."

The voice came from Christina

Everyone was shocked.

In the opinion of the owner of the Island, it was all the current Chief's fault because he was cowardly and never stopped the disasters.

"You brought so many families to me."

As the owner of the Island said that, Mary, a few ladies, and a group of maids screamed as if they had been dragged here by some mysterious force from a faraway place, making them pale with fear.

"You people must die here too." The owner of the Island made a decision calmly. Several of the Chief's wives and a group of maids had no idea what was going on. They turned around and saw that their man was seriously injured. They could only scream.

Mary had been fooling around with the Greatest Elder, and she knew more or less the whole story. At this moment, Mary looked at her own daughter, Christina, who had suddenly changed into a different person. Christina's cold and heartless eyes burst with a strange red light.

"You... You can't hurt me!"

"I'm your biological mother. I'm your mother. You can't hurt me!" Mary seemed to grab the last straw and screamed at the woman in the center.

"The mother of this flesh body?" The owner of the Island seemed to be thinking about something.

Mary heard this voice and shouted even harder, "That's right, I'm Christina's mother. You can't hurt me! You can't hurt me!"

"Sure." Suddenly, the owner of the Island became very straightforward. "To save your life, trade this body for it." The low and hoarse voice came from Christina. The corners of her lips curled up slightly, and a scary smile appeared on her stern face.

The Owner of the Island had always been fair in meting out rewards or punishments. He would kill anyone who went against him, but since he had taken over Christina's flesh body, he was naturally willing to give Mary some rewards

When Mary heard this, she immediately looked surprised. "Okay, okay, I'll give you my daughter's life. You let me go, let me go." She was excited.

"I don't agree!"

On the edge of the cliff, a dirty mud man slowly climbed up. It was Patrick who was angrily objecting.

Patrick, Lucy, and the others were at the foot of the mountain. When they looked up, they found someone in the middle of the waterfall. Patrick had a hunch that Christina was still alive. He thought that the fastest way to reach the top was to climb the mountain.

Charles was the last to climb up with all his strength. He still felt a little chill in his heart, because they had just climbed up along the giant body of the Snake God Nagar. That was why they could climb up so quickly.

"People outside the island."

It was obvious from the owner of Island's tone that he disliked Patrick.

At the same time, Lucy and the others felt more strongly affected by the near magnetic field. Their hearts beat faster, and their blood vessels swelled up, which made them feel uncomfortable.

"The outside world is fragile, you incompetent people." The voice was disdainful and sarcastic.
